These people are kept busy all year directing the activities of the Lancaster High School Spanish Club

Spanish Club Christmas Party Held Last Night

By Sandye Atkins

Last night members of the LHS Spanish Club took part in the annual club Christmas festivities.

The Christmas story was read in Spanish from the gospel of St Luke by Ruth Bankhead. Another feature of the program was a round table discussion of Spanish customs, with Mike North, Keith Rowley, Dave Dykes, Beverly Robinson, Betty Dotson, and Martha Bralley on the panel.

Miss Carol Rodabaugh told a Christmas story in Spanish to the group. All then joined in singing carols in Spanish, led by Sharon Shively. High light of the evening program was the breaking of the pinata

This 24 - year old club was established in 1935 with Miss Vergene Wolfe as the club adviser. Los Caballeros, meaning knights or nobleman, is the club's official name.

The main objectives of Los Caballeros are first, to enable the members to have a better understanding of Spain and Spanish America through study of language, people, literature, and customs, and second, to promote greater friendship among Spanish students by participation in programs and social events

The club has a long history of donations to many different charities. Some of the more recent ones are the Y - drive and the cancer fund. They also answered the playground appeal.

Last year Los Caballeros presented a one - act play, "Nuestros Buenos Vecinos" ("Our Good Neighbors"). This spring they will have the Pan American Banquet These two activities are alternated from one year to the next.

Miss Grace Johnson is the club adviser. The officers are pres. Carol Rodabaugh, vice pres. Betty Dotson Secretary, Gary Franklin; and treasurer, Sandye Atkins. Other board members are Beverly Robinson, George Swisher and Richard Smith. They are respectively the senior, junior and sophomore representatives on the planning committee.

Mary Lynn Fouse Scores Highest On Lincoln Test

Mary Lynn Fouse received the highest score of the 19 students from Lancaster High School who participated in the Abraham Lincoln Sesquicentennial Scholarship Test October 22 in the library.

This test sponsored by the Ohio Lincoln Sesquicentennial Committee of the Ohio State Museum, was given to 9,725 students throughout the state. It was the committee's purpose to show those who studied for this test, that the principles for which Abraham Lincoln stood when the nation was divided, can help now to solve the problems of a divided world

The person with the highest score in the state is eligible for the first award of $250. Pupils who made the highest scores in each of the six state districts are eligibe for an award of $100 each. The next 100 top scorers are to receive a book

Mary Lynn Fouse will receive a one - volume biography of Lincoln by Benjamin P. Thomas. Anne Trousdale placed second in the school with Peggy Pugh and Sarah Baker coming in third and fourth.

Others participating in the contest were William Anders, Diane Elkins, Ellen Greenlee, Connie Hill, Jane Karcher, David Knepper, Larry Landon Jacquelyn Mohler, Phillip Moyer, Beverly Robinson, Carol Rodabaugh, Carl Ruble, Warren Turnbull, Diana Arlond, and Linda Wilmont.

Sandy Pryor Is Recognized For Lots Of Energy

By Mary Lynne Fouse

Dum - De - Dum - Dum'

My name's Saturday. I work out of the Santa Secret Service Agency. It's a few weeks before Christmas. My job -- to check up on a certain Sandy alias Sam Pryor. Characteristics -- a big smile, loads of energy, willingness to help and the ability "to talk a blue streak".

7:30 a. m. -- I checked in at the Pryor residence at 481 E. Main St. where Sandy lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Pryor, and her brothers and sister, Jackie, 13, Don, 8, and Dick, 4. As I sneaked in unnoticed, I heard beautiful flute music. I investigated and caught my first glimpse of my subject. She was blond and blue - eyed. The music I had heard had come from the instrument she held in her hand.

8:30 a. m. -- I followed my subject to an impressive - looking building on Mulberry St. known as Lancaster High School. There we attended study hall, dramatics, Typing II, and World History classes.

12 noon -- After a hurried lunch I rushed after her to an English Club meeting where Sandy acted as secretary. I learned that she is also a member of GAC, Future Teachers Honor Society, and Pep Society. Outside of school she is vice director of Rainbow Girls, council member of the First Methodist Youth Fellowship, and librarian of the St. Cecelia Choir.

12:30 p. m. -- Back to classes. This time it was civics. As assistant to Mr. Bessler and English XII. I found that Sandy maintains a high average in all her studies, and plans after graduation to attend Miami University where she will study elementary education.

3:30 p. m. -- We left the building office that holds so many memories for Sandy. The happiest of these were the dance Prom her freshman year and her induction into the National Honor Society, of which she now is treasurer. I thanked her for her father's fruit farm market where she works in the evenings after school and on weekends.

4 p. m. -- I reported in at the precinct office. I had one more duty -- to file a report. This would be easy. Opinions, most favorable. Items subject wants for Christmas, a sweater in her favorite color blue, the record "In the Mood," and lots of vacation time to watch '77 Sunset Strip', eat hamburgers, and see movies starring Kirk Douglas or Debbie Reynolds.

5 p. m. -- Home to dinner and bed. Following this busy senior on her beat really has me beat!

Four Student Drivers Attend Safety Meeting

To learn the finer points of driving, four students from the Driver Education classes of Lancaster High attended the fourth annual Teenage Traffic Safety Conference in Columbus. These students were: Mike Smith, Susan Hines, Linda Drum, and Paul Holliday.

Following registration at the Ohio Student Union on the Ohio State University Campus, the group was welcomed by Dean Ronald B. Thompson. Governor Michael DiSalle congratulated the representatives from the many high schools for their participation in the conference.

The group broke up into four sections for discussion of problems in traffic safety. Each Lancaster High student attended one group.

Mike Smith attended the group which discussed the topic, "Accepting Your Responsibility as a Driver." The discussion in this group was about safety rules. The group felt that if a child grows up with rules of safety, he will be more aware of them when he becomes of driving age. Safety rules should be taught from the kindergarten grade through driver education. The group also decided that there should be a retesting program every six years.

Susan Hines attended the group which discussed the topic, "Promoting Better Relationships with Enforcement and Court Agencies". The main point of discussion in this group was respect for policemen and highway patrolmen, and the court. The group felt that high schools should have mock trials to better understand the working of the court. They also suggested that newspapers print the facts and let the readers from their own opinions, rather than distort the news of an accident.

Linda Drum attended the group assigned the topic "Getting Safety in Your Schools". This group thought that schools could promote safety through the P. T. A., the administration, and safety posters. The mothers in the P. T. A. of elementary schools should direct the traffic by patrol duty. The administration in high school should control those students who drive their own cars by proving special parking places and allowing no driving at noon. Posters of safe driving practices in the hallways could be used to discourage other drivers from such actions as speeding.

Paul Holliday joined the discussion group on "Evaluating Existing Legislation and Proposing New Legislation.

The group felt that the present law on drag-racing is necessary, that the physical test for a driver's license should be tougher and a mental test should be given to eliminate hot - tempered drivers. Since licenses are used for identification, many felt that proof of age should be required in order to get a license.

Theresa Van Der Hoven

'Lively' Good Description Of L. H. S. Senior

By Carolyn Solt

Well, here I am again, the last night before P and G work has to be turned in and I haven't yet started my profile on Theresa Van Der Hoven ,or more familiarly called "Tessie").

What would be the best way to write about this friendly and helpful senior? She certainly is lively: FTA, Future Engineers, 4 - H, and treasurer of Science Club are her activities.

Besides all of this she maintains an A average in physics, Math 12, typing, civics, English 12. She is also a lab assistant. Theresa likes to sew and won 3rd place for her 4 - H sewing project this summer.

There seems to be no question in her mind about what she likes and dislikes. She likes red, pretzels, the "Danny Thomas" television show, and the record of "Mac the Knife". She especially dislikes people who do not do their own homework. When I asked what she liked most in her years at LHS, she immediately replied, "It's all been very nice."

Theresa plans to attend collge after graduation but has no definite school in mind.

She is a member of the Maple St. E. U. B. Church. She lives at 824 Boyd Street with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myers, and a cat, which to be truthful, doesn't have a name.

Eternal Crisis Of Democracy

By Sharry LeFever

Only an educated nation can survive in this era. As a result of modern scientific experiments, talks of disarmament and nuclear tests, and space rockets, we Americans have only one alternative-- to provide the best possible education sources for ourselves and our posterity, especially our posterity. This we owe to humanity.

Education is the most important art in the world. Why the most important? Because every good thing in life depends on it, except that which comes to us by blind luc

Health, wealth and happiness are attained only through learning, which eventually brings about all inventions and improvements, any significant art and literature

Americans could not succeed in any project without these requisite. Like people who have climbed from poverty to great riches, we grow panicky at the mere thought of having any of the blessings of democracy snatched from us. How can we maint.n these blessings? Education is the only answer.

The nation is on a rigid time table facts are known, undeniably. I call a crisis. We must begin a mar.h, a victorious march to world wide and better schools and teachers. This is the call that we as Americans, must answer.

This is the eternal crisis of democracy

Immigrant Praises Freedom In America

By Jackie Miller

"Free men can do the deeds of giants," exclaimed Mr. Salom Rizk when he spoke to the student body of L. H. S. December 1. Mr. Rizk, a Syrian immigrant to America, related briefly to the audience portions of his latest book, "A Syrian Yankee," an autobiography.

According to Mr. Rizk, Syrian schools were the enemy's first targets during World War II; consequently, his education before he came to America was limited. His book is dedicated to a compassionate school teacher who taught him the rudiments of basic education when he was unable to pay 23 cents a month to attend a local school.

For five years, Salom Rizk harrassed the American Council in Syria for a passport to America. It was finally approved when he was 18. For the first two years after his arrival in America, Mr. Rizk met only cynics and low type humor. Then he enrolled in an English course and thus began his first formal education at the age of 20. "If they said he, him, and his, I didn't see why it was wrong to say sac, snum, and shis; and if the plural of goose was geese why wasn't book, beek." related Mr. Rizk while explaining some difficulties of mastering the English language.

"All royalties from 'A Syrian Yankee' are being sent to Syria to buy pencils for the school children. I have seen a line of many students, each waiting patiently to use the pencil -- the only one in the school", stated Mr Rizk before he presented Principal Fred Lowry with a copy of his book for the L. H. S school library

That humanity is ultimate was greatly emphasized by the speaker. Mr Rizk implied that this was above all national loyalty and that we cannot deny that we are one world in spite of all differences", stated one LHS faculty member.

"Absolutely magnificent, never saw a crowd so completely captivated, inspired a tremendous contribution to America and real freedom." The above statement is a quote by Norman Vincent Peale describing Mr. Salom Rizk.
